Nurullah Said TÜĞMEN

150720823

PART1

STRATEGİC POSİTİONİNG

In this time of fierce competition, one of the things that will highlight a company is strategic positioning. So, what is the strategic positioning? Strategic positioning aims to gain a sustainable competitive advantage by preserving what is distinctive in a company. How can you get more distinctive things than other companies? Being different… Difference is the most important thing to highlight a company. Generally, every company are in the same market, but the different one wins. As Clausewitz said, "Strategy is the necessary response to the inescapable reality of limited resources. Strategy is about making choices on how we will concentrate our limited resources to achieve competitive advantage." In other words, companies take a strategic position by making choices, the more that elections differentiate companies, the more they are distinguished and stand out.

Strategic positioning emerges from 3 distinct sources;

- ✓ serving few needs of many customers
- ✓ serving broad needs of few customers
- ✓ serving broad needs of many customers

I will give two examples of car brands related to this. One of them is Mercedes and the another one is Renault. Mercedes' strategic position is serving broad needs of few customers, while Renault's serving few needs of many customers. If we will explain a little more; Mercedes sells more comfortable, technological, sturdy and expensive cars, and the customer base is also small, but Renault reduces the price by slightly reducing these features, thus gaining more customer base. In short, strategic positioning analyzes the market well and using the tactics I mentioned above, to stand out the company compared to the competitors.

BLUE OCEAN STRATEGY

Blue ocean strategy is to create your own market in a competitive and contentious market. The competitive market here is red ocean and the market you created is called blue ocean. So, when we compare the market to cake, 10 people in the market will get a share of that cake, but when you create your own market (cake), that cake will only be left to you. If we look a little deeper, assuming that cake is a customer need, if we are in the red ocean, you will try to serve alongside many companies serving that need and it will turn into a competition. But if you are in the blue ocean, instead of competing, you will find a new customer need and serve that need without competition. One of the strategies of Sun Tzu comes to mind here, to win without a fight. According to Sun Tzu, "The supreme art of war is to subdue the enemy without fighting." This is an example of the blue ocean.

RED OCEAN STRATEGY	BLUE OCEAN STRATEGY
Compete in existing markets	Create uncontested markets to serve
Beat the competition	Make the competition irrelevant
Exploit existing demand	Create and capture new demand
Make the value-cost trade-off	Break the value-cost trade-off
Align the whole system of a firm's activities with its strategic choice of differentiation or low cost	Align the whole system of a firm's activities in pursuit of differentiation and low cost

BALANCE SCORECARD

Because the business world is so busy, everyone wants to step forward. Various strategies are applied in doing this. While doing these strategies, we make use of the balance scorecard. The regular state of questions such as what future goals, what kind of path will be followed, how will the relations be, is called balance scorecard. Thanks to the balance scorecard, we can look at the plot from above and intervene in any situation more easily. Balanced scorecards have some perspectives these:

- Financial
- Customer
- Internal Perspective/Processes
- Learning and Growth

Each of these 4 four perspectives seek answers to the following questions:

Financial	to succeed financially, how should we appear to shareholders?
Customer	to achieve our vision, how should we appear to our customers?
Internal Perspective /Processes	to satisfy our shareholders and customers, what business processes must we excel at?
Learning and Growth	to achieve our vision, how will we sustain our ability to change and improve?

Balanced scorecard is a helpful tool for organizations. It facilitates decision making for organizations and helps them understand their strategy better. Organizations also use the balance scorecard to enable their customers and shareholders to better understand their vision.

PART 2

Acun Ilıcalı is one of the most famous and wealthy names in our country. But being famous or rich is not something that comes from his family. His family was an ordinary family like everyone else. He is so famous and rich; thanks to the decisions he made throughout his life, the right choices and the strategies he implements. Acun Ilıcalı has brought a lot of innovation for media to Turkey. In fact, none of the innovations it brings are ideas thought from scratch by him. The things it brings are generally created by some countries' media on the world media market. Acun Ilıcalı strategically chose to enter that contentious media war. We can compare this situation of Acun Ilıcalı to the blue and red ocean strategy. We can give the digital platform 'Exxen' as an example of the things I just mentioned. I want to compare the ‘Exxen’ digital platform to the red ocean strategy.

Since "Netflix, Prime videos, Blue TV", with the number of subscribers with a considerable amount of these platforms in the World, they have also serious number of subscribers in Turkey. Acun Ilıcalı has competed with huge digital platforms to serve the current needs instead of finding a new customer need. I mean, he chose the red ocean instead of the blue ocean. But in another way; Even it has been made in the world, yet by another media organization in Turkey before, Acun Ilıcalı is first brought it to Turkey. For this “Yetenek Sizsiniz, O Ses Türkiye, Survivor' are examples. If we think the market in Turkey, he has used the blue ocean strategy. When I look at the other strategies of Acun Ilıcalı, I cannot see Sun Tzu's strategy of winning without fighting. In general, Acun Ilıcalı goes into every war, and here again, Clausewitz's "Tactics are the use of armed forces in a particular battle, while strategy is the doctrine of the use of individual battles for the purposes of war." strategy is seen more prominently. Acun Ilıcalı goes into the media wars every time with developing strategies with each passing day in the competition of between Turkey media organizations. And, probably in the next days, he will use these strategies to protect media summit in the Turkey.